EXP-001 | CLAIM SUBMISSION

When should a travel expense claim be submitted?

Submit a travel expense claim in the expense portal within 10 calendar days after the business trip ends. Attach itemized receipts and identify the trip or project code. A claim may be returned for missing information or unclear business purpose. The deadline applies to submission, not to the time when reimbursement reaches the employee's account.

EXP-002 | HOTEL LIMITS

What is the standard domestic hotel allowance?

For approved domestic business travel, the standard accommodation ceiling is USD 160 per night before applicable taxes. The traveler should choose a safe, reasonably priced option within this ceiling. Any higher rate must receive written manager and Finance approval before booking, unless an emergency makes prior approval impossible. Room upgrades and personal minibar charges are not reimbursable.

EXP-003 | MEAL EXPENSES

What is the daily meal reimbursement limit on a business trip?

The standard meal reimbursement ceiling is USD 55 per travel day for eligible business travel. Claims must reflect actual business-travel meals supported by itemized receipts; the limit is not an automatic daily payment. Alcohol and meals purchased for accompanying family members are not eligible. If a customer event involves hospitality, the employee must follow the separate event-approval process rather than charging it as ordinary travel meals.

EXP-004 | MILEAGE

Can I claim mileage for using my personal car on business?

Personal-car mileage may be claimed at USD 0.45 per kilometer when the business journey was approved in advance. Record the date, business purpose, starting point, destination, and kilometers traveled. Normal commuting between home and the assigned office is not reimbursable. Parking and tolls may be claimed separately with receipts when the business trip required them and the expense was reasonable.

EXP-005 | PREAPPROVAL

Which travel expenses require approval before booking?

Business airfare and overnight accommodation require manager approval before booking, regardless of price. An individual travel purchase above USD 250 also requires documented manager approval. Employees must use the approved booking or expense process where available. Personal travel extensions must be clearly separated from business costs, and the company will not pay additional charges caused by a personal itinerary choice.

EXP-006 | REIMBURSEMENT TIMING

How long does expense reimbursement usually take?

Finance targets reimbursement within 15 business days after a complete and approved expense claim is received. Claims with missing receipts, incorrect cost centers, or insufficient approvals are returned for correction, and the processing clock restarts when the corrected claim is accepted. Employees can check status in the expense portal and should contact Finance if an approved claim remains unpaid beyond the target window.