BUY-001 | LOW-VALUE PURCHASES

Can employees buy low-cost office supplies directly?

A non-travel office purchase below USD 250 may be made through the approved low-value purchase workflow if there is an available budget and the reporting manager authorizes it. Receipts and a business purpose must be retained. This exception does not apply to software subscriptions, restricted equipment, or travel purchases; those items follow their dedicated approval routes even if the amount is below USD 250.

BUY-002 | PURCHASING THRESHOLDS

Which approvals and quotations are required for larger purchases?

A planned non-travel purchase from USD 250 through USD 2,000 requires approval from both the reporting manager and budget owner. Above USD 2,000, Procurement must coordinate at least two comparable supplier quotations. Above USD 10,000, Procurement normally collects three quotations and obtains director approval. These thresholds do not remove the separate security review required for software or data-handling services.

BUY-003 | EQUIPMENT REQUEST

How does an employee request a company laptop or monitor?

Submit an equipment request in the service portal describing the business need and required delivery date. The reporting manager must approve the request before IT or Facilities orders or assigns an item. Company laptops are configured by IT, and tagged equipment is recorded in the asset inventory. Employees should not buy their own laptop and later seek reimbursement without prior written approval.

BUY-004 | SOFTWARE PURCHASING

Can a team subscribe directly to a new software service?

All new software subscriptions, including free trials that process company information, require IT and Information Security review before activation or purchase. The requester must describe the business use, expected data types, user population, and vendor. Procurement handles commercial terms where payment is involved. A manager's budget approval does not replace the technical or data-protection review.

BUY-005 | VENDOR ONBOARDING

What information is needed to onboard a new supplier?

Procurement coordinates new supplier onboarding and requests an approved business contact, company registration information where relevant, tax details, payment details through an approved channel, and a description of the service. Suppliers handling company data may require a security and privacy assessment. Employees must not change bank details based solely on an unsolicited email; Finance independently verifies payment-detail changes.

BUY-006 | URGENT PURCHASES

Can urgent business purchases skip normal approval steps?

Urgency does not automatically waive procurement, security, or budget controls. Where delay would cause material operational disruption, the requesting manager should contact Procurement and the responsible director to seek a documented exception before committing funds. The exception should state the reason, amount, supplier, and approving persons. Information Security review remains required when a proposed service will handle sensitive company data.
